GYPSY QUEEN

Every other week a celebrity seems to bring out a fashion line – whether it be in jewellery, bags, shoes or clothing. Can't they just be happy with the one successful career?

Still, we have been impressed with fashion muse Nicole Richie's chic new

The collection – named after her young daughter, Harlow – is “free-spirited, ethnic, chunky and inspired by the hedonistic ‘60s and ‘70s”.

The 50-piece range includes oversized cocktail rings, leather gladiator cuffs, gold pendant necklaces, Aztec bangles and a three-strand boho headband (which Richie wore herself to her jewellery launch in LA). Find the brand at selected jewellery stores around Sydney. Stockists: Ph 8399 3599.

For that true “boho to babushka” look though, website Oh My Giddy Aunt has the real thing – traditional Semenovo dolls, below – from tiny 7cm three-piece dolls to an incredible 30-piece doll. Prices start from $8.95. Get dolled up at www.ohmygiddyaunt.com.au.

Spend it in your lunch break

Known for its fab fashion and denim, Oz label Wish has made its first foray into handbags. Check out this uber cool “Devyn” stud shoulder bag, $179.95, above. Ph: 9281 5282. Also looking leather-licious was Australia's Next Top Model finalist Samantha Downie, who strutted her stuff for the Lili label at L'Oreal Melbourne Fashion Festival this month. Its winter collection is inspired by Russian folklore, 70s babushka and rock chic. Rock on at www.lili.com.au.
